Don't be a bystander Listen to these stories

November 25th marks the International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women. The theme of this year's event was "Orange the World: fund, respond, prevent, collect!"

We want you to listen to some stories to be aware of the sexual harassment and realize the magnitude of violence directed toward women and girls on a global scale.

Why orange?

The color orange represents a bolder, brighter future for women and girls to unify in fighting for a world without Gender-Based Violence.

Their voices and stories must be heard

One in three women experience violence in their lifetime, across all social status, class, race, country or age group.

Emmanuella was seven years old when she was raped.
At 17, Tabasum was kidnapped and forced to marry an older man, who went on to burn her.

Helen was bullied at school because she liked girls and not boys.

Elisa was dragged to the town square and beaten, because she dared to participate in politics.

Nana escaped being raped by an acquaintance
